

Warriors' Mat Card Is Set

By "DUCK" DUCKSON

When Vic Blue, Wakefield junior varsity football coach this past season, put away his grid togs, he merely reached on the other side of his locker for a gym suit, and the quick change artist emerged the Warriors wrestling coach for the coming year.

A total of 46 boys signed up for the first interscholastic grappling team at the Southside school, which began practice workouts in early November. Currently, Vic has the squad cut to 30 members, many of which are 10th graders.

Having a month's practice behind them, the "grunt and groan" high school artists will stage a practice meet with Gallaudet of D. C. this Saturday. The meet will only be an instructive one, as instructors from both schools will interrupt holds to explain each to the wrestlers involved. An intra-squad match will be held today in preparation for Saturday's encounter.

Altogether there are 11 wrestling weights in high school competition, beginning with 103 pound class and climaxing with the unlimited group. Coach Blue has high regards for many members of his squad, as many have had some intramural experience before coming to the initial varsity sport this year.

In the 112 pound class, Doug Miller, who moved to Arlington from Indiana, has a slight background in grappling at his former school. Billy Lady and Ernie Betts are among those in the 120 pound bracket, while Ronnie Heineman moves into the 127 pound class.

Running through other weight classes, Jimmy Mahugh, Charlie Wagner and Joe Crunkilton spare off at 133, Jimmy Edwards is the 138 pound hopeful while Ken Eshelman, Allan Bauserman, John Wood and Jerry Hand are some of those in the 145, pound class. In the higher weights, Joe Patalive, Chuck Johnson and Bert Mucho fill in a 154, Jim Gildea and Steve Hall at 165, with Porky Pennell and Jim MacIntosh completing the weights in the unlimited class.

Opening date for the Wakefield team is January 7th at Bladensburg, the first match in a six match slate, with competition in the State tournament scheduled for Friday and Saturday, February 25th and 26th, completing the season activity.
